

Today's lean corporate management structures may result in major difficulties trying to find short term replacement for open senior executive positions. Similarly, it is often difficult to quickly find senior executives to occupy critical management and project positions in times of crisis.

Turning to an experienced interim manager may easily provide a short term solution to these management problems.

Typical assignments in Interim Management are

- to fill vacant senior executive positions, covering all areas of business.
- to fill critical management positions for special assignments or projects.
- to provide highly qualified executives and specialists for the assignment
- typically in positions such as
 - crisis management and restructuring
 - productivity improvement and Kaizen, also using our unique AviX® productivity improvement software
 - closure/relocation of company divisions.
 - setting up new (areas of) business
 - quality management
 - change management
 - special projects as assigned by the company's board.
- supported by specialized resources from our network.

Goals

Our interim managers solve your management problems in times of crisis and restructuring as well as with closure or relocation of company divisions. They successfully lead your strategic projects.

Focus areas

- Executive positions - technical
- Executive positions – R&D, production, logistics, quality management
- Crisis management
- Project leader for special projects.